

Sept 2023

It has been some time since our last communication, all the while thinking that 'any day now' the fund would launch. Over the last few weeks, a major issue presented itself; happily, this has now been resolved. Unfortunately, this issue has resulted in a significant delay for our expected launch date. We are still expecting a few weeks of amendments to our offering documents to incorporate the resolution of the above issue and some additional time to register the fund. Notwithstanding any further delays, we hope to launch in about 4 weeks.

This communication is to assure you that we are still working hard to get to the finish line, and we look forward to connecting with you once the launch occurs regarding your Revocable Deposit Account at Christian Stewardship Services. I would also like to continue to assure you that no changes will happen to your account without your express permission.

We are also pleased to report that our rate of return is improving steadily, posting the last two months a little above 5%.

There is a great deal of information about our RDA restructuring efforts in partnership with Capstone Asset Management on our website. This partnership is built around a shared missional commitment to Christian ministry. For further background on this change, please see our interview video on our website at CSservices.ca.

Although the same mission and ministry will continue within the new fund, this will be a change for account holders of the CSS Revocable Deposit. We are however excited about how these developments have the potential to expand the original CSS mission. The RDA program was designed so Christians could make their capital available for mortgages to churches and other Christian schools and charities. This allowed Christians to support worthy projects broadly across the Christian community and within the new fund, that mission will continue now on an expanded foundation.
